Industry Meeting Mining 2019

Thursday, 14 November 2019, Zeche Zollverein, Essen

After the federal policy (in step with the federal states) bans the extraction of energy raw materials in Germany for the future - without seriously examining alternative technologies for reducing the greenhouse gas CO₂ - the industry is concentrating more and more on the world market as a sales area; over 95 % of production has been exported in recent years. The increasing worldwide production of raw materials of all kinds creates the corresponding demand.

Our 2019 Industry Meeting Mining, to which we cordially invite you today, will be an international event. On the one hand, short contributions from Canada and South Africa on the development of the local mining markets are planned. On the other hand, we will address topics that have become an indispensable part of global activities: Data safety and legal regulations relating to the collection and use of data. In addition, we present the status of our work on Roadmap 2035, with which we address the requirements of our customers from all over the world.

With the view to the global orientation of the industry and to the international speakers you will certainly agree, that the event takes place in English language, which underlines the European orientation of the VDMA as well.
